

From the Owners of 3 Aldbury Gardens

We have celebrated many significant life events over the last 21 years raising our family in this house, but by far the most memorable for me was our first night. I just had my second child and we moved in with an 18 month old and a newborn. It was the Victoria Day long weekend, 1999 and the street was enjoying their annual fireworks party at the end of the cul-de-sac. I sat at the front window with my newborn child and watched outside while my neighbours sat on lawn chairs and drank hot chocolate. After each bang came huge cheers and laughter while the sky filled with colour. It was perfect, and I felt overwhelmed with happiness and gratitude for finding this unique little corner of the world to raise my two boys.

I was right...the street never let me down, nor did the neighbourhood. It boasts the best schools in the city, offers natural refuge via the ravine and parks in Sherwood, is easy walking distance to many shops and restaurants and two subway stations.

Truly, this street is unique in all that it offers in terms of location but you'll find more than that on Aldbury Gardens. You'll find a community of neighbours who care and look out for each other. That has been our greatest joy in living here.
